About Course

This course on Women in Leadership: Politics, Governance, Business, Management and Technology is tailored to empower women to navigate leadership challenges across multiple sectors. It provides a unique platform for women to sharpen their leadership acumen, understand political dynamics, embrace digital transformation, and foster professional development for impact in their organizations and communities.

Course Overview

As a woman leader, you face a variety of unique challenges that require practical strategies to navigate. In this program you will learn different approaches for effectively handling common obstacles, navigate political waters, how to strengthen your emotional intelligence, and develop the skills necessary to stand out as a leader among both men and women. This program is effectively the pinnacle of true empowerment and capacity building of women for leadership development.

All evidence suggests that women aspiring to leadership positions need more than they are getting today. The under achievement so far in leadership participation by women suggest that the missing link should be corrected and that is capacity building. This block buster program is a powerful initiative for re-strategizing and repositioning women for higher performance and impacts in all frontiers of the mainstream.

Expected Key Benefits

Will maximize leadership potential for women for high performance and greater impact in all frontiers—home, society, national economy, governance and business—through essential knowledge, best practices and useful experiences garnered from highly interactive sessions on challenges, failures and successes of fellow women in different leadership situations.

Women will be ultimately crafting and highlighting success formulae in all challenging situations. Learning from one another, exploring and adopting the phenomena of female advantage in all challenges as winning strategies.

Certificated and accredited program by Texas Southern University (TSU) and AEMPIN. Professional Alumni Status of AEMPIN.
